

Matt Hsu's Obscure Orchestra

Matt Hsu's Obscure Orchestra is a one-person DIY orchestra conceived by unsigned Brisbane multi-instrumentalist Matt Hsu. In little over one year, he has written songs with international artists Tenzin Choegyal (Tibet), Kenta Hayashi (Japan), and in 2018 Ben Ely of Regurgitator.

In 2017, Matt performed at BIGSOUND, toured Japan, and was nominated for a QMusic Award with his band The Mouldy Lovers.

Playing over 30 instruments from around the world including trumpet, double bass, clarinet, accordion, shakuhachi and found objects, he creates evocative and wholly organic sounds that explore the grey areas between cultures.

Matt independently creates music videos with diverse artists, receiving acclaim from various international film festivals. Often compared to Ryuichi Sakamoto, Sufjan Stevens and Bjork.
